PRESIDENT'S CORNER

Negotiations Still Stagnant

I want to start by wishing everyone a happy, healthy new year.

Many members have asked me, "What's going on with contract negotiations?" closely followed by, "When are we going to get raises?"

We are among 35 state employee unions that are all negotiating new wages, hours, and working conditions as part of contract discussions. As of this writing, yet another state employee union has declared impasse, meaning that it believes its contract discussions are no longer productive. We have not done so yet, as we have a lot of items on the table we do not want to hand over to an outside arbitrator to make the decision that will affect us for years to come.

Our negotiated contract will need to be approved by the Connecticut General Assembly before the May 6 close of the session. Therefore, we are on a time crunch to get the contract negotiated and in front of you, the membership, to see and understand any negotiated changes, and make an informed decision as to whether to approve it.

Now to the second question:

Let me make this clear — in the year we have been negotiating, we have yet to receive an offer of a wage increase from management, either in the form of an original management proposal, or as a counterproposal to our proposed wage increases.

We are heading back to the table this month for renewed discussions with management. Our hope is that they are as serious as we are about reaching an agreement on the many issues we have raised at the table, as well as a necessary increase in wages. We will see if that proves to be the case.

So, OUR FIGHT CONTINUES.

—In solidarity, Bill Garrity
